10/18/2021 1:32 PM	From : support@stockx.com To : [REDACTED] Subject : Re: CRM:0458391 Created on behalf of: Alison-Gala Rodriguez-Martin Content : Hi Egli!

Thanks so much for reaching out to StockX!

I hope you are having an amazing start to the week.

I am reviewing your case and what you mention, I understand that you feel frustrated with the decision of our authenticators.

However I assure you that our team is trained extensively and directly from the brands to spot any irregularities in the items we receive.

I recommend taking this item back to the place you bought it and discuss this directly with them.

I can waive the fee if you provide me with proof of purchase but I do not recommend you try to sell this again in StockX as it will fail verification again.

Is best that you return to the shop to discuss this with them.

I understand that this can be something where you have no knowledge or responsibility in.

As per the Nike Sneakers, you mentioned these failed authentication because the wrong size was sent but that's a completely different reason, this happens too.

Let me know if there is anything else that I can do to help.

Best,

	Alison
